

UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA LEVIN COLLEGE OF LAW
BAYARD WICKLIFFE HEATH MEMORIAL
LECTURE SERIES ON U.S. ANTITRUST POLICY

Professor Joseph Harrington
Professor of Economics at Johns Hopkins University

Game-Theoretic Ruminations on Section 1 of the Sherman Act

10 a.m., March 30, 2012
UF Levin College of Law
Chesterfield Smith Ceremonial Classroom, HOL 180

Agenda

INTRODUCTION

William H. Page, Senior Associate Dean for Academic Affairs,
Marshall M. Criser Eminent Scholar, Levin College of Law

2012 BAYARD WICKLIFFE HEATH MEMORIAL LECTURE

Joseph Harrington, Professor of Economics at Johns Hopkins University

AUDIENCE QUESTIONS

Bayard Wickliffe Heath Memorial Lecture Series on U.S. Antitrust Policy

Heath

The Bayard Wickliffe Heath Memorial Lecture Series on U.S. Antitrust Policy was made possible by a gift from Inez Heath, Ph.D., widow of Bayard "Wick" Heath, to honor his professional accomplishments as a lifetime antitrust litigator and to inspire law students to learn more about antitrust law. Before his death in 2008, Heath was the senior competition consultant with Gainesville, Florida-based Info Tech, a firm specializing in statistical and econometric consulting, expert witness testimony and antitrust law. Prior to joining Info Tech, Heath spent 14 years as a prosecuting attorney, including 11 years devoted to the investigation of bid-rigging conspiracies. He also served as the assistant attorney general for the Florida Attorney General's Office, Antitrust Section, and worked as an assistant attorney general for the Dade County State Attorney's Office. He earned his bachelor's degree in political science at Washington & Jefferson College and his juris doctorate from Suffolk University.

Joseph Harrington joined the Johns Hopkins faculty in 1994. He currently serves as the chair of the Department of Economics and the chair of the MA Program in Applied Economics. He has served on six editorial boards, published dozens of articles and two books, presented at numerous conferences and symposia and more than 70 seminars nationally and internationally. His academic experience includes his time as assistant professor at JHU; visiting assistant professor at University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill; associate professor at JHU; visiting scholar at Northwestern University and the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona; and visiting professor at Harvard University.